SATURDAY, SEPT. 30, 1882.

THE MASHER MASHED.

There were plenty of seats in the car, but as he walked down the aisle he looked sharply to the right and left until he reached a pretty girl who was sitting alone.

"Seat engaged, miss?" he asked with a knowing wink.

"No no, sir," stammered the girl, looking around in dismay.

Down he plumped and braced himself for the campaign. He was a regular passenger, and held his commutation ticket in his hand.

"Shall I open—?"

"Tickets!" roared the conductor, who had watched him from afar.

The regular passenger smiled sweetly on the pretty girl and put his pasteboard, out of which two sides were promptly snipped.

"Tickets!"

"Hold on!" protested the regular passenger; "you punched this twice. This lady isn't with me!"

"Sorry," replied the conductor; "but you walked in, set down and went to work on the regular married style. Supposed, of course, it was your wife. Too late now, 'Take a vacant seat next time. Tickets!"

And the passengers went to the conductor and asked him to drink and offered him cigars, and bought out the train boy for him.

"I knew they weren't married," said he, as he squinted at a flask of extra prime.

"I've seen him before, but this is the first time it cost him a couple of dollars to pay it."

"Do you know who the lady is?" asked the inquisitive man.

"My wife, gentlemen," replied the conductor, and even the flask chuckled a merry "glug glug" as he spoke.—[Drake's Magazine.
